All the necessary clerks have been selected, but there are two watchmen yet to be provided, and as the joint resolution declaring the need of them has passed both house they will probably be appointed to-day. Among the house bills of which notice was given or were introduced yesterday were those for the establishment of an insane asylum, appointment of game wardens, and to reg ulate the practice of medicine. Other beneficial measures are in preparation.

THE AUSTRALIAN SYSTEM. Kennedy introduced council bill No. 8, providing for the printing and distribution at all elections of ballots and for the absolute secrecy of the ballot. The bill embraces the main features of what is known as the Australian system of voting, it provides that all ballots shail be printed at public expense, the counties bearing the burden in general elections. The official ballots are handed to electors as they are ready to vote by sworn officers, and the elector must thereupon mark his ballot in secret andyote it before leaving the polling place without disclosing to any one in any way how he has voted. The tickets furnished at public expense must contain the names of all candidates whose certificates of nomination have been filed with the proper officers. Certificates of nomination may be filed by the officers of primary meetings or conventions of parties which at the last preceding election cast one per cent of the total vote cast in the electoral division in which the nominee will be a candidate. Individual or independent nominations may be made by the presentation of similar certificates from one per cent of the individual electors in the electoral division interested in the nomination. The officers whose duty it is to hand the electors tickets, will stamp each ticket as it goes out with a stamp provided for the purpose and no other ticket than one so stamped shall be voted. If in counting the votes any unofficial ticket is found, that is, one not stamped it shall be thrown out. The tickets as made up by the proper officers are to be published for two weeks before election in the newspapers. The bill is quite lengthy, the many minor details requiring this. It is, however, no longer than the Massachusetts law of the same character or the similar bills introduced this winter into the New York, Nebraska and Colorado legislatures.
